

January 2007

NEW ROLE FOR NORRIE AT DAVICON

Davicon, the UK's leading manufacturer of mezzanine floors, has appointed Andrew Norrie as its key account manager for the systems integrator market.

A chartered civil engineer, and with more than 10 years experience in the construction industry, Andrew has spent the last three years focussed on complex mezzanine floor projects for Davicon's key customers including; Vanderlande, FKI Logistex, Jungheinrich and Knapp Logistik.

Andrew says, "Often, the nature of these projects is highly technical and involved and as such clients require dedicated and professional support. This new role allows me to offer exactly that."

Andrew's responsibilities will include the provision of technical support, design and costing relating to all aspects of mezzanine floors and structural steel work requirements as well as full involvement with the client throughout the project.