

June 2007

Training Dates announced at Davicon's new training facility

The UK's leading mezzanine floor manufacturer is stepping up its service to its Partners, Distributors and Associates. A new onsite training facility has been created at its Midlands headquarters to provide comprehensive product training to its entire supplier network. Mark Jones, Key Account Manager, will be running training courses on site at Davicon's new training facility on the 27th June and 12th September. Mark will be covering floor design and installation as well as conducting a tour of Davicon's dedicated mezzanine floor facility. Mark says, "The demand for training from our customer base is encouraging. The new facility gives us the opportunity of passing on the years of experience we have to more of our customers and that can only be good for the industry and the final customer. As part of the course I will pay particular attention to the latest health and safety regulations and how they apply and affect how floors should be designed and installed."

Fit out and refurbishment companies that have an interest in learning more about the training sessions should contact Mark directly on 07970 941278.

Davicon's new on-site training facility at its West Midlands HQ